

not allowing satellite radio into the local market would be like forcing the VOTING public to make a choice they dont want to make! this would be a detriment to up and coming technology the fact of the matter is that the million and 1/2 americans that have already signed up for xm did so because of poor local radio quality allowing the localization of xm and the like would light the proverbial fire under fm radios ass and cause them to offer more diverse programming and higher quality...instead of deciding what people in thier listening area will listen to !
